

Epic Rap Battles of History Releases New Motion Capture Episode, Fully Animated with Unreal Engine

Epic Rap Battles of History Unleash Their First Ever Motion-Capture Rap Battle with Godzilla vs King Kong

LA, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, February 29, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Youtube Series the Epic Rap Battles of History (ERB) has once again stormed the internet with their latest episode: Godzilla vs. King Kong. Breaking new ground, this marks the series' first use of motion capture technology and virtual production using Unreal Engine.

Using the Xsens Suit by Movella, StretchSense Gloves, and Unreal Engine 5.2, motion capture has enabled Nice Peter and epicLLOYD to embody these iconic characters and bring them to life with the comedic timing and awkward dance moves their fans are counting on. "I'm not the first person to realize Unreal Engine is a game changer," said series co-creator Nice Peter, while his long time friend and fellow series creator epicLLOYD cringed behind him. Pete continued, "But in all seriousness, the tools available now to small groups of creative filmmakers are going to change everything. When we started, we never could have imagined being able to make a CGI character come to life with 3 people huddled around one decent PC"

I'm not the first person to realize Unreal Engine is a game changer.”

The episode contains the usual burns, jokes, insults, puns, references, and triple entendres that viewers have come to expect from Epic Rap Battles of History. The entire history of Godzilla and King Kong is explored in this rap battle that is truly epic in scale.
