The Utica native, known for his achievements as an award-winning music rapper, author, actor, screenplay writer, and director, has taken a significant step in merging his artistic talents with a focus on youth development and education.

The newly released coloring books, each illustrated by Thomas, cover a wide range of themes designed to spark creativity and learning in young readers. Titles such as "Outer Space Coloring Book," "Cars, Trucks And Airplanes Coloring Book," and "Fruits And Vegetables Coloring Book," among others, aim to provide children with fun yet educational activities that promote an interest in various subjects.

Thomas's decision to explore children's literature stems from his passion for storytelling and commitment to positive community impact. "I wanted to create something that entertains and serves as a learning tool for kids. It's about offering them a way to explore their creativity while learning about the world around them," said Thomas. This initiative aligns with his ongoing efforts to engage with and contribute to his community, mainly through motivational speaking and activism.

The release of the coloring books marks an essential development in Thomas's artistic journey, highlighting his ability to adapt and explore new creative avenues. Dennis Jackson, Media Relations for Eugene G.
