Host and Executive Producer John Iadarola, said, "I'm proud of our team for reaching 1 billion views on YouTube. Not many channels can claim such a milestone. I hope that every one of those views represents someone gaining something of value from the show - a piece of critical information, a bit of hope, a laugh, a story not being discussed anywhere else, or maybe a chance to understand and articulate our values better. My aim is for viewers to walk away with knowledge that empowers them to engage their communities and drive positive change."
