PHOENIX, ARIZONA, USA, February 28, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Avolve Software, the global leader in electronic plan review, and Tyler Technologies, the leading integrated software and technology services provider to the public sector, announce a strategic partnership that will provide

NEW PARTNERSHIP

Avolve and Tyler Strategic Partnership Enhancing Community Development

public sector jurisdictions with seamless end-to-end permitting and plan review processes that delivers state, county, and city objectives for community development efficiency gains.

The demand from government agencies for increased levels of interoperability from system suppliers, is driven by goals to achieve outstanding citizen services. This creates an attractive commercial environment and the desire to build great workplaces for their staff. This new strategic partnership meets these requirements, creating alignment and full integration of Tyler's Enterprise Permitting & Licensing (EP&L) software, with Avolve Software's ePlan review suite; ProjectDox, DigEplan Pro, and DigEplan.

"We are thrilled to join forces with Avolve to offer our clients an unparalleled experience, seamlessly integrating electronic plan review with our Enterprise Permitting & Licensing suite," said Greg Savard, general manager of the civic services business unit at Tyler Technologies. "Our discussions with their exceptional team have been insightful, and we eagerly anticipate the myriad of opportunities this partnership will bring to our valued clients."

The partnership is supported by a cross-departmental effort to ensure a true integration model that delivers mutual customers a cohesive and efficient product delivery and support. This has been a priority in every level of both organizations, from executive leadership and product development, to sales, marketing, and the customer experience team.

"As a partner-centric organization, we believe that together, through strategic partnerships rather than disparately, we can better serve our government customers. We are thrilled to be partnering with leading permitting technology from Tyler and look forward to offering Avolve's best-in-class ePlan review solutions to Tyler's EP&L customers," said Derek Porter, Chief Growth Officer, Avolve Software.

"Tyler and Avolve are aligned in business approach – collaborative, extensive insight and knowledge, great people to work with – this is a major boost to the partnership, which I am confident will better serve our mutual customers' community development requirements as we move forward in harmony," concluded Porter.

Initial feedback from joint customers has been informative and positive, as the two companies look to fine tune the solutions' integration to deliver a tightknit connection that creates that the ultimate seamless experience.
