This program doesn't just teach music; it nurtures souls, and for that, I am eternally grateful.”

Anna Florentis

Live Play Workshop is a non-profit organization with a compelling mission to make music education accessible to children and young adults from all walks of life. Founded by Richard Lyszczek and Justin Stile, who are not only business partners in the technology company Alobi but also share a deep passion for music, Live Play Workshop emphasizes the transformational power of music. Their foundational belief is that music education is not just about notes and rhythms but about opening doors to creativity, enhancing self-expression, and boosting self-esteem among the youth. Through their leadership, Live Play Workshop strives to inspire and nurture the next generation of musicians by providing them with the necessary instruments, educational materials, and guiding mentorship from seasoned professionals.

"Seeing Alobi's trajectory over the past year has been truly remarkable. Their success not only stands testament to their unwavering dedication but also underscores the profound impact they are making within the community through this incredible non-profit initiative." - George Mayfield, Founder and CEO Frameworks Consortium

The "Live Play Workshop" series represents a significant step forward in the realm of music education, combining Live Play Workshop's mission to make music accessible to all children, regardless of their circumstances, with CP Communications' commitment to delivering high-quality live production. Together, these organizations are setting the stage for a new generation of musicians, extending an invitation to communities, music enthusiasts, and philanthropists alike to join in supporting this noble cause.

This partnership heralds a new era in music education, where the fusion of Live Play Workshop's passion for empowering children through music and CP Communications' technological prowess creates an unparalleled platform for aspiring young musicians. The collaboration leverages CP Communications' advanced RHStv streaming service, ensuring the talents and efforts of these young musicians are broadcasted with exceptional quality, capturing their journeys from enthusiastic novices to confident performers.

The "Live Play Workshop" series is more than a music program; it is a life-changing experience for the youth involved. By engaging in this initiative, teenagers learn much more than musical skills. They develop life-long attributes such as discipline, teamwork, confidence, and creative thinking – qualities that will serve them well beyond the stage. This program underscores the belief that music can be a powerful tool for positive change, nurturing the souls of young participants and enriching the communities they live in.

"Watching my daughter, Gabby, blossom through the Live Play program has been an extraordinary experience. Her newfound confidence, combined with the invaluable skills that she has acquired, fills me with pride. This program doesn't just teach music; it nurtures souls, and for that, I am eternally grateful." - Anna Florentis

Key to the success of the "Live Play Workshop" series is the technological support and expertise provided by CP Communications. Through its RHStv streaming service, every note played and every chord struck by these young musicians will reach audiences far and wide, promising a level of production quality that matches the caliber of their performances. This technical excellence not only enhances the viewing experience but also amplifies the impact of the program, showcasing the incredible talents of these young individuals to a global audience.

"Music is our universal language, translating thoughts and emotions into sounds we can all feel and hear. In my time with Live Play Workshop, I've seen its power create a space for young people to overcome their fears, step outside their comfort zones and achieve their goals. I can't think of a more satisfying experience in my 35 year career than facilitating these transformations." - Johannes Quilitz (Ice), Instructor with Live Play Workshop

The eagerly awaited "Live Play Workshop" series is set to premiere on March 1, 2024, with a new episode airing every Friday morning for six weeks. Audiences can look forward to an inspiring series that charts the progress of two teen rock bands, from their formation and rehearsals to their final performances. This behind-the-scenes look at their musical and personal growth journeys will offer viewers a unique perspective on the transformative power of music education.

We invite everyone – from music fans and educators to philanthropists and community leaders – to support the "Live Play Workshop" series. By liking and subscribing to our YouTube channel and Facebook page, you can stay informed about the series and learn about other ways to contribute to this meaningful cause. Your support can make a real difference in the lives of these young musicians and the broader mission of promoting music education for all.
