Through this partnership, we are committed to support leaders that care and championing inclusivity and fostering environments where everyone can thrive"

Marian Temelkov

VC impact investment manager committed to scaling circular economy solutions addressing biodiversity loss and climate change, and Dynamis Group, a high-value talent consultancy, proudly announce a dynamic partnership dedicated to supporting companies with talent attraction and development, as well as driving initiatives focused on gender equality and youth engagement in scale-ups across Europe.

This collaboration is a significant stride toward attracting and developing the best possible talent for accelerating growth across a start-up ecosystem that is increasingly attractive to high-potential individuals and rising stars. The partnership is also fostering inclusive cultures and empowering the next generation of leaders. The core objective of this partnership is to coordinate joint initiatives that attract the best possible talents to scale-ups that are key to the transition, promote gender equality and engage with the Gen Z demographic. Una Terra will work closely with Dynamis Group to spearhead events, projects, and activities dedicated to advancing these vital causes both at European and local level.

Luca Zerbini, CEO and Founding Partner at Una Terra had this to say, "We firmly believe that radical collaboration is key to driving positive change. With Dynamis Group, we aim to leverage our combined expertise and resources to meaningfully impact the overall talent agenda in the innovation space, enable gender equality and empower youth, while furthering the circular economy solutions the world urgently needs."

In support of Una Terra's educational agenda, Dynamis Group will provide invaluable expertise in talent selection, development, education and facilitate connections with relevant stakeholders. Additionally, Dynamis Group will assist in leadership search and due diligence processes for Una

Terra and its portfolio companies, ensuring the cultivation of diverse and inclusive leadership teams.

"We are excited to embark on this transformative journey with Una Terra," stated Marian Temelkov, CEO at Dynamis Group. "Through this partnership, we are committed to support leaders that care and championing inclusivity and fostering environments where everyone can thrive."

Both parties have committed to supporting each other's visibility through their respective channels and events and providing expertise on demand. Moreover, they will explore collaborative opportunities such as the Gen Z survey initiative with the European Investment Bank (EIB) Institute and participation in impactful events like New York Climate Week and WEF Davos.

With this radical collaboration there is a shared commitment to forge a path towards a brighter, more inclusive future as climate change and biodiversity loss solutions are scaled.
