It is so hard to build a business; it is not easy, and it is not for the faint of heart."

Sharon Ringier

The "HERstory Unveiled" campaign aims to draw attention to the challenges women business owners face while celebrating their remarkable contributions as trailblazers across various industries.

"It is so hard to build a business; it is not easy, and it is not for the faint of heart," Ringier said. "We want to enhance awareness of women's empowerment issues and direct more support towards women-owned businesses. This special edition is an opportunity to inspire aspiring entrepreneurs by showcasing what's possible."

Her mission with the six-year-old collective and her magazine is to elevate women's voices in business and give them opportunities to grow professionally and personally.

Through the collective, she creates a platform for women entrepreneurs to connect and collaborate while allowing them visibility and exposure by sharing their voices and expertise with business owners. This is done by offering workshops, intimate conferences, and coaching programs designed and facilitated by Ringier which further enhances the supportive ecosystem for these women to empower them and support one another on their entrepreneurial journey.

This platform is also the driving force behind the success of The Possible Woman Magazine, a publication dedicated to empowering and supporting female entrepreneurs.

Ringier invites businesses to explore sponsorship opportunities to position themselves as champions of women in business. If you would like more information about these opportunities, email her at Sharon@ImPossibleWEC.com.
