Incorporating Berlin into our international network underscores flynas' growing presence in Europe and solidifies our position as leaders in the global low-cost aviation sector”

Bander Almohanna, CEO and Managing Director of flynas

The new Berlin-Jeddah route, set to begin operations on September 4, 2024, will offer three weekly flights from King Abdulaziz International Airport (JED) to Berlin Brandenburg Airport (BER).

This growth aligns with the Saudi National Aviation Strategy's goals of accommodating 330 million passengers and attracting 150 million tourists by 2030. It also reflects the airline's expansion strategy, launched early last year under the slogan "We Connect the World to the Kingdom.”

In the ongoing pursuit of Saudi Vision 2030's ambitions for enhanced air connectivity, flynas is actively contributing to the Kingdom's aim of establishing itself as a global travel and tourism hub with more than 250 international destinations connected by the end of the decade. Additionally, the airline's efforts further the goals of the Pilgrim Experience Program, aimed at simplifying access to the Two Holy Mosques.

On this occasion, Bander Almohanna, the CEO and Managing Director of flynas, stated, "Incorporating Berlin into our international network underscores flynas' growing presence in Europe and solidifies our position as leaders in the global low-cost aviation sector. We are committed to offering more economical options for passengers seeking direct routes between the Kingdom and European destinations, in alignment with our partnership with ACP and the national ambition to establish the Kingdom as a premier global travel and tourism hub."

Majid Khan, CEO of ACP, commented, "We are excited about the launch of this new route between Berlin and Jeddah, as we work towards catering to the growing tourism demand from Europe. This added route with Germany through flynas reflects our commitment to enhanced connectivity and a robust air connectivity ecosystem. We look forward to working with our domestic and international partners in opening new routes and offering European travelers more options to discover the wonders of Saudi Arabia."

Additionally, Hazim Alhazmi, President of Americas & Europe Markets at the Saudi Tourism Authority, said, "This strategic partnership reinforces the growing relationship between Europe and Saudi Arabia, highlighting our common dedication to mutual advancement and cultural exchange. By enhancing connectivity and facilitating travel to the German market, we are creating new opportunities to engage with our business partners and cater to tourists to Saudi. We extend an invitation for all to discover the unique beauty of Saudi at any time of the year, as a warm welcome awaits you."

Currently, flynas connects more than 70 domestic and international destinations, with more than
