Gerry Poirier, CEO and Founder, AngeLink

AWBC, the leading national voice and resource for igniting the economic power of women's entrepreneurship, and AngeLink have teamed up to support this unique solution to help women succeed as business owners. The goal of this powerful collaboration is to level the playing field for women entrepreneurs seeking to raise money to start a company or grow their small business.

“AngeLink is thrilled to partner with AWBC to provide hope to women by counseling and training those who launch an AngeLink crowdfunding campaign to fund their small business. We couldn’t be more proud than to kick-off our partnership, in honor of International Women’s Day, in Washington, DC.” - Gerry Poirier, CEO and Founder, AngeLink AngeLink works with conscious leaders and compassionate companies to curate programs and solutions designed to achieve gender equality, elevate women, and empower underserved communities.

“AWBC is excited to work with AngeLink to provide hope to more women seeking funding for their businesses. With an AngeLink campaign, women benefit by sharing their fundraising journey with their communities, increase brand awareness for their company and gain unmatched exposure to their venture. Crowdfunding on AngeLink can be an important part of a funding strategy to start or grow any small business.” - Corinne Goble, CEO, AWBC

To further both individual and philanthropic efforts, Poirier established the AngeLink Community Foundation (ACF) 501(c)(3) charitable organization to create a radically new ecosystem of financial inclusion to raise women up to their highest potential. "My intention when starting AngeLink and our foundation was to enable all, but especially women, to realize that they are capable and deserving of their aspirations and to empower them to boldly pursue their goals," says Poirier.

AngeLink is committed to driving unparalleled representation for women. From a purposeful hiring model with 90% of their team being women, to the company’s Pillars of Giving which nurture the spirit of female empowerment to achieve global economic parity for women, AngeLink is focused on furthering opportunities to engage this specific demographic.

“AngeLink is the second act in my career story,” says Poirier. “The first part of my work life was in the male dominated finance industry which opened my eyes to the lack of opportunities for women in many fields. I now have the incredible power to lift-up other women through strategic partnerships like AWBC.”

Leveraging her much-appreciated platform, Poirier seeks to advance women to not only obtain a seat at the table but the opportunity to lead the conversation. So, this International Women’s Day, it’s no surprise that you’ll find Poirier leading her female powered company and pursuing opportunities to spread the word on why empowering women in business is essential.
