Smith has been impacting change in the supply chain space for over 20 years. As a constant student of evolving technology, she is always exploring the next avenue available for keeping up with industry expectations. Most recently, Smith led an extensive ERP/WMS rollout for a trailer parts manufacturer that spanned 40+ sites. Sarah's visionary leadership and strategic approach were instrumental in orchestrating the successful design, testing, and implementation phases, which were executed seamlessly across 10 waves of work.

"Many of today's supply chain pros are more than just leaders within their space; they're innovators, decision-makers, pioneers of change and growth. They've spent the last year (and more) creating safer, more efficient supply chains," says Marina Mayer, editor-in-chief of Food Logistics and Supply & Demand Chain Executive. "New this year, we broke the award down into four distinct categories: Top Warehousing Stars; Top Procurement Stars; Rising Stars; and Lifetime Achievement. These winners continue to go above and beyond to overcome challenges, advance supply chain management and make the impossible, possible."

In addition to her professional accomplishments, Smith is deeply committed to nurturing the next generation of supply chain leaders. As a Senior Director at Alpine, she is currently mentoring a team of new recruits. Her main focus is helping them learn ERP and WMS technology and guiding them on how to interact with both executives and end users.

"Receiving the Lifetime Achievement Pros to Know award is a tremendous honor," said Smith. "I am immensely grateful for the support of my colleagues and mentors who have guided me along this remarkable journey. Here's to continued innovation and success in the ever-evolving landscape of the supply chain industry."

Recipients of this year's award will be profiled in Supply & Demand Chain Executive's March 2024 issue, which will be distributed at MODEX 2024 and at www.SDCExec.com.
