The selected students will join seven of their peers at the conference, which draws over 1,500+ middle and high school student leaders from across the country. Partstack's sponsorship will help cover registration, hotel, transportation, and meal costs for both students.

"We are thrilled to support these young leaders as they develop the skills needed for future careers—and of course, we hope they'll land in science, technology, and engineering," said Stanley Philip, Program Manager at Partstack. "Exposing students like Michael and Akeria to leadership conferences and STEM fields early on can truly shape their trajectory. We hope our sponsorship empowers these students and gets them excited about the many opportunities available to them."

The JAG Career Association at Arthur F. Smith Middle Magnet School works to prepare students for careers, college, and citizen leadership roles. Earlier this year, Arthur F. Smith's JAG officers attended the Louisiana JAG Student Development Conference and brought home several statewide officer positions. "We are grateful to Partstack for their generous sponsorship, which allows more of our students to benefit from this career-expanding JAG National Career Development Conference,” said Cynthia Jackson, JAG Specialist. “The experience these young leaders gain will motivate them for years to come. Students will learn leadership, employability, problem-solving, decision making and communication skills—all of which will help them to become productive citizens and grow in their career fields and post-secondary education. Arthur F. Smith Middle Magnet School’s JAG-LA students appreciate Partstack’s support, and they are excited to have the opportunity to leave the great state of Louisiana and visit St. Louis, Missouri for the first time.”
