demonstrations at our store starting in 1971 and extending for decades. Phyllis' claim to fame was preparing a Thanksgiving meal in a Microwave including moist turkey prepared in less than 2 hours.

Bordona's SubZero Wolf Cove live demo kitchen features two unique designs on display that showcase contemporary traditional kitchen lines offered by the brand. Wendy Glaister, founder of Wendy Glaister Interiors, worked with the Bordona's team to create the two kitchen styles so that the showroom may offer special events, partnering with high-profile chefs' to demonstrate the new alluring kitchen designs and features.

Ron added, "Working with designer Wendy Glaister, and through our partnership with SubZero Wolf we are able to bring a live demo kitchen to our community. Wendy made the design process seamless and together we were able to create a stunning and modern showroom that allows for our customers to experience the live demos and amazing chefs while we honor the legacy our family-owned business has created."

On March 16th from 11 am - 1 pm, Bordona's will offer an amazing live demonstration with Chef Chris Wong alongside delicious appetizers paired with wines from Mathew Bruno Napa Valley Wines. This event will include a chance to win two complimentary tickets to Riggs Distributing exclusive "Supper Club" event which includes a 4-course gourmet dinner with a live cooking demo. (To book a private cooking demo with up to 20 guests call 209-847-0351 to schedule your appointment.)

About Bordona's

In 1908 Julian Bordona left Spain and followed the lumber industry to America, wanting to establish a new life for the Bordona family, and settled in California. Their retail story began in March of 1931 with the opening of their first family-owned grocery store, called Westside Grocery, in Riverbank, CA which offered poultry, meat, and vegetables, alongside other goods. The family thrived through the depression and eventually, the son, Bob Bordona, bought the business from his father Miguel Bordona, and expanded their products to offer refrigerators, washing machines, and stoves, and as the business continued to grow through the years they added televisions, mattresses, and a wide range of furniture. Part of the generational success Bordona's has seen in their 93-year history stems from Miguel Bordona being a hands-on self-taught genius who was able to fix appliances, install plumbing, work as a carpenter, an electrician, and a butcher.

In 1959 when Bob Bordona graduated from Oakdale College and married his wife Phylis, they heard that Hershey's Chocolate was opening a factory nearby, which led to their opening their second store in Oakdale, CA. In 1971 they needed to expand and they changed locations to an even bigger retail location with a storefront on the main street in Oakdale.

Since 1931 and through three generations in the retail business, Bordona's has been supporting families throughout California's Central Valley, with a proven ability to provide quality products and offers an endless array of kitchen brands, as well as television - entertainment options, mattresses, furniture, and more that is open to designers and consumers enjoyment. With styles that inspire customers to turn their houses into homes, their showroom offers the widest variety of options to suit every design, project, and budget. Bordona's is open daily Monday - Sunday from 9:00 - 6:00 pm at 102 West F Street, Oakdale, CA 95361.
