Select harness was designed as an affordable option with advanced features – because every worker deserves comfort and versatility in their harness.”

The innovative flexible padding of the V-Select is molded to move comfortably with the wearer and is built with a specially formulated material that is more breathable. Improved air flow keeps workers cool, plus the durable pads are bacteria resistant to avoid trapped odors and won't weigh down with moisture build-up over time like traditional mesh.

An integrated barrel-style channel replaces the more common pigtail to provide quick and easy day-to-day attachment for personal SRLs. The unique design secures the SRL with less movement, reducing impact and maintaining the D-ring in the proper position for ultimate safety.

The V-Select harness is lightweight for all day comfort with double-plated hardware that is corrosion resistant to extend harness life. Specially engineered webbing slides through the hardware easily for effortless adjustability to ensure proper fit. This economy option is perfect for residential and commercial roofers as well as concrete and steel construction. Also recommended for MEP (mechanical, electric, plumbing), painting, drywall and scaffolding.
