The "Just Like Joseph" project recognizes the inherent potential within every individual and seeks to provide them with the necessary resources to thrive in society. Through a holistic approach, participants are equipped with the skills and mindset needed to identify their attributes and leverage them towards achieving their goals.

A man's gift makes room for him, And brings him before great men.”

Proverbs 18:16 (NKJV)

"At the heart of 'Just Like Joseph' is the belief in redemption and the power of second chances," says Darcell Walker, co-founder of the program. "We understand that the transition from incarceration to freedom can be daunting, but with the right support and guidance, individuals can overcome any obstacle and realize their full potential. Recidivism increases when there is no support structure in place. "According to the National Institute of Justice, nearly 44% of released criminals return to prison within the first year of their release." The U.S. has one of the highest: 76.6% of prisoners are rearrested within five years. - Harvard Political Review

Co-founder Derrick R. Walker says, "One of our key objectives is rehabilitation and reemergence into society with empathy. We provide technical guidance and instruction on developing ideas into innovative products, businesses, and services, thus improving society."

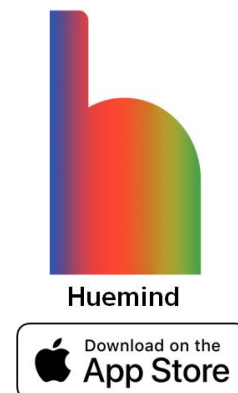

Central to the program are tailored strategies for personal growth and readjustment. Participants are guided through the process of developing essential personal practices that facilitate their integration back into society. By fostering a sense of self-awareness and resilience, "Just Like Joseph" empowers individuals to navigate challenges and pursue meaningful opportunities.

This uncle and nephew team brings a wealth of experience and expertise to the "Just Like Joseph" project. The Walkers are deeply committed to advocating for justice and fostering spiritual growth. They also want to unleash the innovation and creativity of these individuals. Their passion for supporting marginalized communities led them to establish this initiative as a beacon of hope for those impacted by incarceration. "Every person has an idea. And every person deserves the chance to develop and share that idea. Our society depends on Improving their lives," says Derrick R. Walker.

The program also incorporates innovative tools developed by Darcell Walker, including his books,
