Asia Pacific held more than 35% of the wired interface market revenue share in 2021 and will witness expansion in the forecast period. Asia Pacific is the largest and fastest-growing region in the wired interface market, driven by factors including the rising popularity of gaming and esports, as well as the rising usage of smartphones and other connected devices. Additionally, South America has tremendous growth potential, notably in the fields of consumer electronics and transportation.

Due to of its advanced IT infrastructure and high rate of technology adoption, North America is a crucial market for wired interface technologies like Thunderbolt and USB Type-C. The adoption of specific wired interface methods may be hampered by Europe's strict laws around data security and privacy.
