sense of community and collaboration throughout Atlanta. As we celebrate Women's History Month, it's a privilege to honor Dr. Dawood for her remarkable contributions and to recognize the positive impact she continues to make on our city's progress and inclusivity,” said Andrea L. Boone, Atlanta City Council Member.

Nazeera's passion for serving the public and her tenacity to improve the welfare of both communities and businesses combines 20 years of experience in both the public and private sectors including non-profit work. After a career as a medical doctor, she earned a Master's Degree in Public Health from UNC, Chapel Hill. She then spent 8 years in public service as Research Project Manager at Emory University, Director of the Fulton County

Health Department Division of Health Promotion and Fulton County Chief of Staff for the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners. During this time, Nazeera developed an extensive knowledge of the government's procurement process that she would later use to found Vendorship.

"Being recognized by city leaders for Women's History Month is an honor," said Dr. Nazeera Dawood, "As we strive to make diversity and inclusion less of an ideal and more a common practice, companies like Vendorship can serve as an example of how to bring equitable access and opportunities to all businesses."
