

Houston Food Bank Partners w/ Femtech Startup & Netflix Reality TV Star Aparna Shewakramani to Alleviate Period Poverty

A Green Solution to Menstrual Inequity Backed by Notable Netflix Houston Celebrity Influencer this International Women's Month

HOUSTON, TX, UNITED STATES, March 18, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- MoonPads, a B Corp founded by Dr. Meg Ferrigno, is teaming up with Aparna Shewakramani, star of Emmy nominated Netflix series "Indian Matchmaking" and author of "She's Unlikeable, And Other Lies That Bring Women Down," to collaborate with the Houston Food Bank in addressing the critical issue of Period Poverty. This joint effort aims to bring awareness and practical solutions to combat the lack of access to safe and effective menstrual products.

On this day, MoonPads will generously donate 2,016 boxes of tampons and 192 boxes of pads to support the fight against period poverty in the Houston area. Period Poverty adversely affects individuals by compelling forced absences from work, school, and other aspects of life. As a silent global health crisis, it impacts hundreds of millions of menstruators worldwide, with a notable impact on 1 in 5 American menstruators during their lifetime.

MoonPads, as a B Corp, focuses on providing organic, compostable pads and tampons on a buy-one, give-one basis, contributing to the eradication of period poverty. By offering a non-toxic, environmentally safe alternative to conventional menstrual products, MoonPads recognizes the interdependence between the health of menstruators and the well-being of the planet. Founder

Aparna Shewakramani, Netflix Reality TV Star of Indian Matchmaking Partners with MoonPads and the Houston Food Bank

Meg Ferrigno, PhD, was inspired to create MoonPads through her humanitarian work with Tibetan nomads, where she encountered the harsh reality of period poverty. MoonPads offers regular pads, night time pads, and tampons that are not only affordable, comfortable, and trustworthy but also environmentally friendly. For every box sold, MoonPads commits to donating a box to someone experiencing period poverty.

Celebrate and cover this impactful event at 1 pm on March 18th at the Houston Food Bank, where MoonPads, Aparna Shewakramani, and the Houston Food Bank will unite in the shared mission of addressing period poverty.

MoonPads believes that every menstruator worldwide should have access to menstrual hygiene products that prioritize their well-being and contribute positively to the Earth. To learn more about MoonPads and their mission, visit www.ourmoonpads.com

Press Contact:

Name: Carolyn Reeves

Mobile: 860-490-5434

Email: Sales@ourmoonpads.com

Press Kit: attached

Founder Meg Ferrigno, PhD, was inspired to create MoonPads through her humanitarian work with Tibetan nomads, where she encountered the harsh reality of period poverty.

“

By distributing feminine hygiene products via food banks, families have a one stop shop for all their needs; it's amazing to collaborate with MoonPads and the Houston Food Bank to serve our community.”

Aparna Shewakramani, Netflix Reality TV Star & Author

Bianca Bucaram
THE BUCARAM PUBLIC RELATIONS Group
+1 713-898-6552
email us here
Visit us on social media:
Facebook
Twitter
LinkedIn

Regular Tampons

Certified

Corporation

This press release can be viewed online at: <https://www.einpresswire.com/article/696359018>

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

© 1995-2024 Newsmatics Inc. All Right Reserved.