NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE, UNITED STATES, March 18, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Award-winning photographer Sara Morrison, known for her photography through Nashville Image Company and Sara Grace Photography, has joined forces with philanthropist Laura Quaid to shed light on childhood cancer research. Together, they are spearheading what they call the "Portraits of Hope" initiative, aimed at raising funds and awareness for childhood cancer research through the 501(c)3 nonprofit Rally Foundation for Childhood Cancer Research.

Rally Foundation's mission is to empower volunteers across the nation to raise funds for childhood cancer research, seeking better treatments with fewer long-term side effects and, ultimately, cures. To support this cause, Sara and Laura are leading the charge as the official team captains of the Light Chasers team, rallying support for the upcoming event, Rally On the Runway Nashville, scheduled for Thursday, April 18th, 2024, at Marathon Music Works in downtown Nashville.

Highlighting the significance of the initiative, Sara Morrison eloquently expressed, "We are deeply invested in this campaign, which we've aptly named Portraits of Hope. Laura and I are joining forces to not only raise funds through our fundraising team called Light Chasers but also to shine a spotlight on the remarkable lives of a few local Tennessee Rally Kids who are courageously battling and triumphing over childhood cancer. Through this initiative, we aim to honor their resilience and bring much-needed awareness to the challenges they face. I've
