The American Dream has chosen to showcase the work of the 365 Foundation due to its commitment to advocating for equal rights and providing safe spaces for women to express themselves. The show streams on the Travel Channel, HGTV, Prime Video, Roku, Apple TV, and Bloomberg Television.

The foundation's initiatives include 'In the Pink' Podcast, Crossing Fences (Incarcerated Women's Prison Reform), the Women's Monthly Art Gallery Series, and the Engaged & Empowered. By leveraging the arts, community service projects, and partnerships with local organizations, the 365 Foundation aims to create lasting change in Lansdale's communities.

"Women's rights are essential for creating social change," said Venezia. "We must invest in women in our communities to achieve true equality."

The American Dream's producer and crew are scheduled to arrive at the 365 Foundation Lansdale Office on April 5th to film the Foundation's first episode of its women-centric podcast, 'In The Pink.' Amanda Knox will be the first guest, and Natalie Venezia will interview her.

Later that evening, The American Dream Crew will film the welcome event planned for Amanda Knox, who traveled from Seattle to provide her support for the 365 Foundation and to close Kristina Bivona's Solo Artist Show.
