

Auterion Names Scott Henry as its First-Ever Chief Financial Officer

Added C-Suite Role Marks New Phase of Company's Growth

ZURICH, SWITZERLAND, March 25, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Auterion, the technology platform behind unified robotic workforces and powering the world's leading drone manufacturers, announced today that Scott Henry has joined the company as its first-ever Chief Financial Officer.

"We are thrilled for Scott to join Auterion as we bolster our senior leadership team and climb towards Auterion's next peak," said Lorenz Meier, CEO and Founder of Auterion. "He has seen massive growth in his career and has spearheaded scale-ups at companies similar to Auterion."

Henry joins Auterion with more than 30 years of financial leadership and corporate finance experience, including CFO roles at pre- and post-IPO technology companies. He has a track record of scaling financial operations for high-growth companies. Most recently, Henry served as CFO of competitive gaming platform company, Skillz, Inc. (NYSE:SKLZ), and prior to Skillz, as CFO of spatial computing company, Magic Leap.

"I am incredibly excited to join Auterion and be part of the company that is delivering the platform for standardization for the next evolution of autonomous vehicles," said Henry.

Earlier in his career, he held the CFO role at other companies including Beats Electronics and Beats Music, both acquired by Apple, and Las Vegas Sands Corporation (NYSE:LVS) where he led the company through its IPO. Prior to LVS, he spent nearly 18 years on Wall Street providing capital raising and advisory services to growth-stage companies.
