

Better Days Treatment Center Introduces Pet-Friendly Rehab in Anaheim, California

Anaheim, California – Better Days Treatment Center is pleased to announce the introduction of pet-friendly rehab in California that enables patients to enjoy the company of their pet throughout the entire recovery process.

Utilizing its team's over 40 years of experience offering inpatient rehab, Better Days Treatment Center's pet-friendly rehab provides the same luxury residential rehab service with the additional benefit of patients' pets accompanying them throughout the entire treatment program.

"Pet-friendly rehab in California could be exactly what you need to take the next step towards your recovery goals," said a spokesperson for Better Days Treatment Center. "When you're ready to get started with it, the easiest way to do so is by reaching out to Better Days. Our addiction specialists are standing by to answer your questions, verify your insurance, and get you started with the best pet-friendly rehab option for your goals."

Patients undergoing pet-friendly rehab at Better Days Treatment Center will receive the same types of treatment as other rehab options, such as 1-on-1 therapy sessions, group meetings, medication (if necessary), and holistic healing treatments like meditation and yoga classes. They will also benefit from the Anaheim rehab center's bespoke reality-based recovery model that uses the lived experiences of residents as teaching moments for developing healthier life expectations.

Better Days Treatment Center has found that patients who opt for pet-friendly rehab over its conventional residential rehab have found it to be a less draining experience. Not only has the financial and emotional burden of leaving their pet at home been removed, but patients additionally find increased support and less anxiety by having their pets with them.

"The main benefit of pet-friendly rehab is getting the intensive substance abuse recovery support you need without having to leave your pet behind. That's a big deal for people who don't have family members or friends that they can trust with their pets. But on top of that, it may actually help you get more out of your rehab experience if you have your pet with you. That's because rehab can be a tough, draining experience. But it should be easier to maintain a positive spirit if you have your pet to rely on whenever you're feeling down or frustrated," furthered the spokesperson for Better Days Treatment Center.

Better Days Treatment Center invites those interested in finding out more about its pet-friendly rehab or who have any questions to reach out to its professional team today via the contact form on the top treatment center's website.
