BALTIMORE, MARYLAND, UNITED STATES, March 26, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Linking personal, contemporary situations and Bible readings, acclaimed Oneness With God author Ronald E. Richardson shares emotional stories about his connection with God and how it dramatically transformed him from the thralls of anguish and depression.

In an impassioned interview with WTKO radio host and President Carol Henry, Richardson describes his state after he and his girlfriend agreed that she should have an abortion and how the aftermath transformed him, propelling him forward as a steadfast devotee of God.

"In the early 1980s, I met this young lady. She was also a fellow law student at night," Richardson recalls in the interview. "She got pregnant, and we both agreed to have an abortion. I did not think much of it at the time, but almost immediately after the abortion, I had this overwhelming conviction. This brought about depression because I felt more and more that I took a life. I had agreed to the taking of a life, an innocent life, and there was no getting that life back."

Richardson, a Baltimore attorney who recently released an updated version of his 2006 book, Oneness With God, shares more about his theological exploration of the mysteries of God in the interview and why he has faithfully followed this path.

"I felt horrible," he says of the period after the abortion. "I felt as if my spiritual future was doomed. I no longer desired to complete law school, go to work, or do any of the basic daily functions because, in the end, all was lost. I did not know any way to rectify the situation until I remembered my spiritual upbringing. And I knew that there was this God, and there was Jesus.

Eventually, I found myself on my knees in my apartment in desperation. And I pleaded with Jesus that if indeed he does exist, and there is, indeed, the ability to save souls like mine, that I embrace it wholeheartedly."

Richardson said, "I give him everything, every breath, every thought. I give up my life to him in return for this saving, this so doomed for eternal damnation. When I got off my knees, and I don't know how long I was down there, but when I finally got up, I actually felt - I can't explain it any other way - I felt the guilt fall off of me, praise God. From that moment forward, I felt redeemed. I was even more committed to giving everything to him. And so I had this tremendous thirst to know the word of God."

"Not only is its content filled with detailed information, but Mr. Ronald Richardson's testimony was enlightening. It is obvious he put concentrated study into critical issues affecting Christian culture.," says Retired Senior Pastor Lyman Isaac Doster, of The Greater Providence Missionary Baptist Church, Los Angeles, California. "His presentation comes across as honest and straightforward."

Richardson was asked during the interview about a statement in the Bible where Jesus says you must be the least to be the greatest. What is meant by it?

"This was another area that I prayed about and researched. One possible interpretation of what Jesus meant by that is that if I served everyone else before I even thought about serving myself, and I am the least," Richardson says. "If everyone in the Kingdom of God had that same servant mentality and served everyone before thinking of themselves, then by definition, I would be served by everyone in the Kingdom because they all have the same servant mentality that I have serving everyone before themselves. So I would be the greatest in the Kingdom of God because I'm served by everyone, but at the same time, I would be the least in the Kingdom of God because I'm serving everybody before I serve myself."
