Dr Suzanne Causey

“Giving your beloved pet a peaceful passing in the familiarity of your home is indeed a final gift of love. I was fortunate enough to be able to experience in-home euthanasia with my dog Kylie a few years earlier surrounded by family. She was able to pass peacefully in the comfort of our home, doing what she loved most, sunny bathing in the grass.” says Dr. Gary Hsia. Dr. Gary Hsia, Dr. Bethany Hsia, and Dr. Karen Whala are co-founders and veterinarians of CodaPet. They share a passion to increase both customer access and awareness by empowering a network of veterinarians that provide compassion and professional care to more pets and their families in a familiar environment.

“Having provided end of life care to my own pets both in a hospital setting and at home with their family, I've experienced first hand the difference an at-home euthanasia makes to everyone involved. I am committed to helping pets and their families have as stress-free, dignified and peaceful passing as possible. CodaPet has provided me with the support I need to be able to focus on pets and their families and excel at this,” says Dr Kelly Neri. Dr Neri graduated from Cornell University College of Veterinary Medicine in 1996. In 2004, She moved to North Carolina

How In-Home Pet Euthanasia Works

Through CodaPet's website, pet parents can easily book in-home pet euthanasia performed by a licensed vet.

Before the appointment, the vet contacts the family to address any questions or concerns they might have.

The vet assists the family by going over the diagnosis and applying a quality-of-life assessment to objectively assess the pet's health and ensure there is no uncertainty about the need for euthanasia.

For those who need support with aftercare, CodaPet can also assist with transportation and cremation services.

The visit takes, on average, one hour. Pet parents have a window of time to be with their pets privately before and after the euthanasia procedure, which lasts about 15 minutes. The vet only starts the euthanasia process when everyone is ready. This helps bring closure to all family members involved in the end-of-life care of a pet.

Benefits of at-home euthanasia may include:

1. Comfort in Familiar Surroundings: In-home pet euthanasia allows your beloved pet to remain in the comfort of their own home, reducing stress and anxiety by being in a familiar environment.
2. Reduced Stress and Anxiety: Pets can experience less stress during their final moments as they are not transported to a clinic, avoiding additional discomfort. The familiar scents and objects at home provide a calmer experience.
3. Peaceful Goodbyes for All Family Members: In-home euthanasia enables all family members, including other pets, to be present during this emotional time, fostering closure and understanding for everyone involved.
4. Personalized Attention and Support: A compassionate veterinarian provides personalized care, addressing concerns and ensuring the pet's well-being and dignity are prioritized throughout the process.
5. Minimized Separation Anxiety: Allowing all pets to be present during the euthanasia helps reduce separation anxiety among them, promoting a smoother transition for the entire household as they grieve the loss of their companion.
