“We are excited to partner with globally respected organizations like Eurofins. The accreditation process completion demonstrates their commitment to GRMA's GMP program and evidence of our market acceptance across the Health & Wellness categories,” said GRMA Executive Director Allyn Shultis. “Organizationally, Eurofins has been active within the GRMA for several years and observed the 100+ omni-channel and retail brand chain members that the GRMA brings together for industry collaboration & harmonization. As a fully accredited Certification Body across all three scopes, Eurofins can utilize their international breadth to advance the GRMA program locally and globally over time.”

“Eurofins is committed to contributing to the health and safety of all by providing high-quality laboratory, advisory, and assurance services. Being a fully accredited CB for the GRMA GMP certification program is well aligned with our mission — allowing us to provide accredited certification services across all three GRMA scopes — dietary supplements, over-the-counter drug products, and cosmetics/personal care products,” said Eurofins Food Assurance US Managing Director Randy Rankin. “We’re proud to have attained this important distinction and look forward to supporting the growth of the program.”

Becoming a Fully Accredited Certification Body

The GRMA partnered with the ANSI National Accreditation Board (ANAB) to develop a rigorous vetting, authorization, and approval process for CBs. This process ensures that CBs are dedicated to the highest degrees of integrity and professionalism and confirms the partnership between the CB and the GRMA. Upon conclusion of this process, our members and stakeholders are assured of the authority, integrity, and trust in the audits performed.
