today announced a groundbreaking partnership with Mysten Labs, a leading web3 infrastructure company and the original contributor to Sui. This strategic collaboration will empower Gamma Interactive to fully dedicate their resources to the development of their highly anticipated upcoming title, Macht, while simultaneously offering players a revolutionary new approach to season passes via Sui, the groundbreaking layer 1 and smart contract platform.

"We are thrilled to join forces with Mysten Labs on this exciting venture," said Dave Katz, Founder and President of Gamma Interactive. "We're focused on tying burgeoning technologies together to give players maximum value for their investment of time and energy. Sui is ideal for what we want to accomplish and I'm sure players will be excited with what we have in store!"

Combined efforts from Macht and Mysten Labs will leverage Sui to create a unique and interactive season pass system for Macht. This system will move beyond traditional models, offering players a more dynamic and engaging way to experience the game's ongoing content.

Macht's season pass model intends to deliver:

- A living record of players' seasons containing highlights, accolades and the likes.
- Access to content and competitions based on player's level and completion.
- A way to bind seasons together to form career encompassing collectables.
- A tradeable collection/memorabilia piece on the open marketplace

"We are excited to partner with Gamma Interactive to support the development and launch of Macht," said Anthony Palma, Gaming Partnerships & Investments at Mysten Labs. "Our combined expertise will not only elevate the game itself but also redefine how players engage with games and their assets."

About Macht

Macht, currently under development, is Gamma Interactive's upcoming squad based competitive FPS planned for both VR and flat screens. With new twists on familiar gameplay modes like capture the flag, capture and hold, team elimination and more, players will battle using endlessly customizable weapons, tools, abilities and vehicles.
