"The class of 2024 Inductees represents not only exceptional entrepreneurs but individuals who have leveraged their success to transform lives far outside the scope of their industries. Their servant leadership is the distinction of this award and what makes the honor so special—the combination of transformational economic impact and the wanting to use that impact to make the world better," said David Huntley, TBHF Chairman of the Board.

“What sets this honor apart is the selection process and what it represents. There are countless business prizes out there. Ours has become one of the most meaningful because it is peer-selected by our state’s most notable entrepreneurs and only those who have been inducted into the Texas Business Hall of Fame—a group that is dedicated to honoring those innovators and pioneers who lead by example and embrace their responsibility as business leaders as a much larger responsibility to problem solve in their communities,” said TBHF Executive Director Meredith Walker.

TBHF 2024 Inductees: Michael M. Boone, Joe Gebbia, Kathleen S. Hildreth, David B. Miller, David Robinson, and Taylor Sheridan
