

Nextpoint Announces Educational Partnership with eDiscovery Today

Nextpoint & eDiscovery Today to educate legal professionals in organizations of all sizes on how to leverage technology & legal services to simplify eDiscovery.

HOUSTON, TX, USA, April 4, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nextpoint, a leading provider of transformative software & services for all law-kind, announced today an educational partnership with Doug Austin's eDiscovery Today blog, the only daily blog for electronic discovery, information governance, cybersecurity, data privacy and artificial intelligence trends, best practices and case law.

The partnership enables Nextpoint and eDiscovery Today to work together to educate legal professionals in organizations of all sizes on how to leverage technology and legal services to simplify the eDiscovery lifecycle.

eDiscovery education has been part of the Nextpoint mission since day one. We're excited to bring our educational content and thought leadership to a wider audience with eDiscovery Today.”

Rakesh Madhava, founder and CEO of Nextpoint

“eDiscovery education has been part of the Nextpoint mission since day one,” said Rakesh Madhava, founder and CEO of Nextpoint. “As legal data volumes grow in size and complexity, it's more important than ever to have reliable, trusted resources that break down this complex landscape. Doug has long been a powerhouse in creating these resources, and we're excited to bring our educational content and thought leadership to a wider audience with eDiscovery Today.”

“With growing data volumes and more eDiscovery use cases than ever, organizations of all sizes have a need for affordable eDiscovery technology and services” said Doug Austin, Editor of eDiscovery Today. “I'm excited to work with the Nextpoint team to educate the legal industry on how eDiscovery technology and best practices can address today's discovery challenges!”
