“They know it's illegal, and yet they continue to risk their lives and others for a thrill. They will move from one location to another, or sometimes head out on to our main highways. There must be more done to shut this activity down” declared Heidari.

Heidari states “The problem is so bad that several residents have discussed putting their homes up for sale to avoid living in an area that the street racers tend to frequent. These residents are living in fear and must not be driven out of their homes as a result of these criminals.”

Metro's Racing Apprehension and Intervention Detail made 277 arrests in 2023 and 286 reckless driving citations were given out the same year.
