What is AI?

Artificial Intelligence is a combination of many subsets like machine learning, deep learning, neural networks, and intelligent retrieval. It is also known as Strong AI or artificial general intelligence (AGI) which mimics human intellect, but cannot replace it. It learns behavior and recognizes patterns, similar to cognitive abilities of a human brain, to do familiar or unfamiliar tasks.

When used judiciously, AI can be used to find solutions by making use of fuzzy logic. But if it goes out of control, AI can be destructive. Virtual assistants are used in: (1) eCommerce shopping apps, (2) robots in vacuum cleaners and restaurants, (3) online video games, (4) medical equipment's, (5) virtual tutors, (6) data heavy industries, (7) Manufacturing plants, (8) Packing, (9) distribution, (10) shipping and (11) logistics industries are extensively making use of AI.

Among the recognized AI development Companies are industry giants (startups who became
