

Thunder in the Wind: A Journey of Rebellion, Acceptance, and Family

Unveiling the Struggles of the Assiniboiné and Triumphs of Indigenous Peoples in the Face of Oppression

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, April 12, 2024

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The journey of the Assiniboiné Indians is remarkable and unforgettable, both for them and for the world. They were among the first to experience forced deculturization by a technologically superior society who subscribed to the ethos of White Man's burden that was popular in the late eighteenth centuries.

Thunder in the Wind

"Thunder in the Wind" by Curt Orloff explores how a people dealt with the evisceration of their culture. They had to decide whether to surrender to it to preserve their families, as Miskaw's mother aspired to, or to rebel, as circumstances forced her son. Their perspectives showed how complex and universal the problem is. Today, in several regions, entire cultures are under even more violent attack. It seems few learn from all the cautionary tales history provides, which this historical novel is one.

Curt Orloff has been writing books for five decades, fueled by his passion for storytelling. He holds a bachelor's degree in history and another in geology, inspired by people and ancient times. "Thunder in the Wind" was born from having been steeped in Indian lore, from growing up on flood plains the Calumet Indians hunted in, living close by prophet's town, and being an eagle Boy Scout, Advancement in the Scouts mirror Indian age societies. Geologic fieldwork in the West introduced to him to plains Indians. There, he learned how similar the Cree Almighty Voice was uniting regional tribes to that of the Shawnee Tecumseh, who Curt knew about since childhood.

A book about rebellion, acceptance, and family, it's a valuable addition to anyone's reading list.

Discover the challenges, cultural exploitation, and hardships faced by indigenous peoples striving to maintain their heritage within the culture foisted on them.

"Thunder in the Wind" is available now at leading bookstores and online retailers, promising to captivate readers with its profound message and compelling storytelling.

Don't miss the chance to get a copy of this book at the upcoming LA TIMES Festival of Books on April 20th and 21st, 2024, at the University of Southern California campus. Visit the Olympus Story House booth #25 at the Cardinal Zone.

Olympus Story House is an emerging digital marketing firm based in California that focuses on offering high-quality work at a reasonable price. Our talented staff collaborates with clients to establish a stronger brand and help them get the recognition they deserve. We have the ultimate goal of providing our authors with services that would fit a wide range of marketing budgets, offer reliable feedback and proper guidance in their projects, and present quality service. With our team of passionate marketing and publishing experts, we strive to bring our client's projects to their best potential.

Marketing Team
Olympus Story House
+18188090723 ext.
email us here

---

This press release can be viewed online at: <https://www.einpresswire.com/article/703285992>

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

© 1995-2024 Newsmatics Inc. All Right Reserved.