In addition to this, as a Showstopper at the conference, Michael Koch shared his views on the topic, “The Continuing Evolution Of Work! Life! Play!” In this session, Michael captivated attendees with an engaging discussion on the rapid evolution of technology and its societal impact over the past 25 years. Drawing from personal experiences working alongside industry giants like Bill Johnson, Steve Jobs, and JY Lee, he highlighted the exponential growth of technology and its transformative effect on our lives. He also highlighted an important point: many young people nowadays are more comfortable with digital spaces than traditional ones, indicating a significant change in preferences.

Coupled with the impending demographic tide where millennials dominate 45% of the population and will soon outnumber older generations in the workforce, Michael sparked a thoughtful discussion on the impact of these trends on our collective future.
