It's little known outside of Brazil that one of the world's largest Roman Catholic processions, revolving around the statue of Our Lady of Nazareth, Queen of the Amazon, takes place in Belém, every year on the second Sunday in October. Called "Círio de Nazaré", it's also one of Brazil's largest annual festivals after Rio's Carnival celebrations. The tradition of transformative powers associated with the statue of Our Lady of Nazareth dates back to 1700.

"I can't sufficiently express the energy which emanates from a rapturous gathering of over two million faithful who accompany the statue of Our Lady of Nazareth along the 2.25 miles (3.6 kilometers) course from Belém's Cathedral to Our Lady's Basilica, that Sunday, every October," noted Walda Marques, a leading Brazilian Artist from the region, as well as QAT Artistic Consultant. "That energy continues to permeate Belém, throughout the year", said Marques, who also hosts an artist's visit and luncheon at her studio (a 136 year-old colonial home), as a part of the QAT tour package.

"This is a great time to visit Belém, which is experiencing a revitalization of its public spaces, parks, historic sites, and monuments, in preparation for the COP30 meeting, next year. We invite the Roman Catholic community to experience the Amazon with Querida Amazonia Tours", added Mourão. Tourism to the Holy Land will likely be impacted this summer; QAT presents a new, unique option for Catholic pilgrims seeking relevant, alternative destinations. [END]
