An international art initiative that connects the world with prayers for peace, which has been exhibited in 55 locations around the world, now coming to Hong Kong

The "DANDELION PROJECT" was started by artist Ryotaro Muramatsu in 2020 during the COVID-19 pandemic, and is built around the concept of "planting" (installing) interactive "DANDELION" sculptures around the world to bloom digital art flowers symbolizing peace. Kawajiri has been supporting this art project since 2021 as it has been exhibited in various cities such as Paris, Los Angeles, Shanghai, Singapore, Tokyo, and Kyoto, and continues to connect with locations around the world.

The latest installment of the DANDELION will be in Hong Kong, where creative company NAKED, INC. will be exhibiting their experiential art event "NAKED FLOWERS Exhibition of Dancing Lights and Shadows: Hong Kong" at 1881 Heritage, an iconic cultural hub and popular leisure complex. The concept of this exhibition is to "touching flowers, enjoying flowers, and learning their secrets.” Through various works such as sculptures, moving images, interactive elements, aroma installations, and music that adorn the venue, visitors can enjoy an art experience of uncovering the secrets of flowers and the world of nature around us using the five senses.
