Business Technology Architects and IT Leaders to Meet April 23 at the IASA Ireland/ICT Skillnet TechBREW Event in Dublin

This is the first of many Iasa events planned this year in Ireland like a Sustainability event, Women in Architecture event and Chief Architect Forum event.

AUSTIN, TX, UNITED STATES, April 18, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Iasa Ireland with its partner Technology Ireland ICT Skillnet set to host a TechBREW event, featuring the theme Software Architecture – Citizen as the Service Integrator, in Dublin on April 23.

> This event will offer architects invaluable insights into the future of their profession as well as how innovations will revolutionize service delivery, not just in Ireland but across the EU."
> Paul Preiss, the CEO of Iasa Global

"Join us for an evening of networking and tech discussion as we delve into the transformative power of verifiable digital credentials and the importance of the role of an architect, and the wider profession, in supporting digital transformation," according to the event partners, who added that the event is perfect for business technology architects, chief architects, CTO/CIOs, senior technologists, and business leaders.

The event which was oversubscribed within a week of being announced gets underway at 18:30 at the Harbourmaster, IFSC, in Dublin and will include a Fireside Chat with Barry Lowry, Irish Government Chief Information Officer, who will discuss Shaping the Future of Public Service.

The event will also feature a panel discussion on the Importance Of The Architect Profession, featuring panelists:
• Dennis Mulder, CEO and Co-Founder at WVE; Iasa CITA-Distinguished; ex CTO of Microsoft Netherlands
• Barry Lowry, Irish Government CIO at Department of Public Expenditure and Reform
• Gar MacCriosta, Digital Advisor for HSE; IASA Fellow & CITA-Distinguished
• David Jones, Chief Architect at WVE; Country Leader at Chief Architect Forum Ireland; IASA CITA-Distinguished; ex Head Of European Enterprise Applications, Canada Life Group

This is the first of several Iasa events planned in Ireland for the year ahead including an upcoming event on Sustainability, a Women in Architecture (WIA) event and a Chief Architect Forum (CAF) event.

"These Iasa events offer the architect community invaluable insights into the future of their profession and in this case, how these innovations are set to revolutionize service delivery, not just in Ireland but across the European Union," said Paul Preiss, the CEO of Iasa Global.
