Bindings is thrilled to announce the participation of author Michelle Toole at the prestigious Los Angeles Times Festival of Books, taking place on April 20th and 21st, 2024, at the University of Southern California. Toole's delightful children's book, "Under the Bed Fred: Every Child's Night Time SUPERHERO," will be prominently featured at Booth 182 in the Gold Zone, where attendees can explore the magical world of Fred and his mission to protect children from imaginary monsters.

Under the Bed Fred

"Under the Bed Fred: Every Child's Night Time SUPERHERO" is an enchanting tale that captivates young readers with its imaginative concept and heartwarming story. Michelle Toole, a gifted author known for her ability to spark children's imaginations, has created a beloved superhero character who comes to life when the lights go out. Fred, the extraordinary superhero, resides in a cozy apartment that exists under every child's bed. As the darkness descends, Fred emerges to keep watch over the young ones, protecting them from their fearsome imaginary monsters. He remains vigilant until the break of dawn, ensuring that children can sleep peacefully. With the rising sun, Fred retreats to his secret abode, resting until the next nightfall.

At the Los Angeles Times Festival of Books, attendees will have the opportunity to immerse themselves in the enchanting world of "Under the Bed Fred: Every Child's Night Time SUPERHERO." Inks and Bindings invites visitors to Booth 182 in the Gold Zone, where Michelle Toole's book will be prominently displayed. This is a chance for children and their families to explore the pages of the story, and discover the magic that lies beneath their beds.

To plan a visit and make the most of the festival, consult the official schedule provided by the Los Angeles Times Festival of Books at <https://events.latimes.com/festivalofbooks/schedule/>.
