U.S. News & World Report's Comprehensive Evaluation

The U.S. News & World Report Best Senior Living ratings and profiles represent the gold standard in evaluating senior living communities. The comprehensive assessment delves into various facets, including community and activity offerings, food and dining services, caregiving, and management and staff performance.

Objective Statistical Assessment

U.S. News & World Report's accolade is no small feat. The Best Senior Living designation is awarded based on an objective statistical assessment of each community's performance, derived from consumer satisfaction surveys administered between April and November 2023. These surveys capture the perspectives of over 200,000 current residents and family members across thousands of senior living communities nationwide.
