In "The White Coat Effect," readers are introduced to Rory Weber, whose journey from awkward adolescence to accomplished surgeon forms the heart of the story. Driven by her father's expectations, Rory navigates the challenges of the medical field while also grappling with her own desires and relationships. When she meets Amir, a charismatic surgeon, their forbidden love forces Rory to confront the complexities of her identity and the sacrifices she must make.

L.B. Wells is a Board-Certified Surgeon whose own experiences infuse the novel with authenticity and emotion. With candor and courage, Wells explores themes of ambition, sexuality, and the quest for acceptance in a male-dominated world. Through Rory's story, readers are invited to delve into the complexities of love, career, and self-discovery.

Beyond her literary pursuits, Dr. LB Wells offers global humanitarian work and advocacy for women's health. Fluent in four languages, she has received numerous accolades for her contributions to medical programs worldwide and initiatives to support underserved communities.

Don't miss the opportunity to discover "The White Coat Effect" at the Los Angeles Times Festival of Books. Join The Reading Glass Books and Writers' Branding at Booth #959 in the Black Zone of USC on Saturday, April 20th from 9:00 AM to 11:00 AM for an unforgettable literary experience.
