Jason Ruedy, The Home Loan Arranger, Sees Increase in Debt Consolidation Loans Amidst Inflation and Homeowners' Desire to Keep Low Mortgage Rates

DENVER, COLORADO, USA, April 25, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Jason Ruedy, the President and CEO of The Home Loan Arranger, a leading mortgage lender in Denver, CO, has observed a troubling pattern among homeowners in the region. Ruedy has witnessed a significant surge in applications for debt consolidation loans, HELOCs, and closed-end 2nd mortgages. The growing popularity of these loans can be attributed to homeowners grappling with challenges in managing their debts, primarily due to inflation, escalating homeowners insurance premiums, rising real estate taxes, and higher interest rates on credit cards and other debts. Ruedy argues that homeowners who rely on the expectation of clearing their debt by keeping their lower rates are unlikely to succeed. However, he believes that a comprehensive debt consolidation approach could improve the well-being of homeowners by reducing stress.
