POACHING

Rhinos are facing extinction with about 16800 white rhinos and 6400 black rhinos left in the world. There are only two northern white rhinos remaining.

Poaching in South Africa rose by 900% between 2009 & 2013.

1349 rhinos were killed that year and they were placed on the endangered species list.

On average one rhino is poached every day.

Rhino horn is falsely peddled around the world as a supplement for enhanced virility.

There is no factual basis to this claim as it is made of keratin, which is commonly found in hair and nails and has no medicinal value.

The Amakhala Game Reserve located in the malaria free Eastern Cape of South Africa began in 1999 as a joint conservation venture between the owners of six lodges who are direct descendants of the original Frontier settlers some five generations ago and arrived here with the British settlers of 1820. The families originally settled to farm sheep and cattle on the wild and often hostile Zuurveld.

Amakhala Game Reserve is a unique conservation initiative that allows animals to be re-introduced to the area where they once roamed freely and so making a contribution to the conservation of our natural heritage. The land was used to ranch sheep and cattle up to the turn of the century. The challenge has been to re-establish the original flora and fauna species to the area and to return the land to nature.
