

The Human-Animal Alliance sponsors 'River' and 'Rocky' at Tomorrow's Rainbow

Mini ponies join the charity's animal team providing healing for children navigating grief

WELLINGTON, FL, UNITED STATES, May 9, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Wellington-based charity The Human-Animal Alliance is delighted to announce the sponsorship of two mini rescue ponies 'Rocky' and 'River' at Tomorrow's Rainbow - a place for children, teens and families healing from the death of a loved one.

"Sponsorship such as this is vital for the care of our horses, such as River and Rocky. These ponies were recently rescued and are now taking part in therapeutic activities for children both on and offsite," said Abby Mosher, Founder and Executive Director of Tomorrow's Rainbow, based in Coconut Creek, Florida. "We are grateful to The Human-Animal Alliance, whose core mission aligns with ours in realizing the value of equine therapy in helping people to heal from grief and trauma."

'River' and 'Rocky' are a bonded pair that were rescued to be a part of the mobile programs, Grief on the Go and Tomorrow's Rainbow Coping Academy. The entire herd of equine, big and small, at Tomorrow's Rainbow is rescued - an important part of the nonprofit's values.

The sponsorship program at Tomorrow's Rainbow provides funding for the care of the therapy horses plus Grief Support Groups, Equine-Assisted Psychotherapy and mobile programs supporting grief, loss and adversity. "Tomorrow's Rainbow is a safe place where children feel, often for the first time, understood," said Mosher.

Assisted Psychotherapy for those struggling with an array of mental health challenges including trauma, PTSD, anxiety and depression.

“Equine-assisted therapy is recognized globally for its profound impact on physical, emotional, and psychological well-being,” said The Human-Animal Alliance Founder and Wellington resident, Jackie Ducci, who recently visited Tomorrow’s Rainbow to meet ‘Rocky’ and ‘River’ and see them settled in their new home. “Horses are deeply intuitive and have a remarkable ability to help humans heal. Organizations like Tomorrow’s Rainbow epitomize the power of human-animal connection in the services they provide, and we are honored to support their program again this year.”

Ducci personally covers The Human-Animal Alliance’s overheads to ensure that every dollar donated goes directly to the charitable projects it selects for grants. Every project is extensively researched and evaluated before being selected as a grant recipient.
