We believe that every artist should have the tools to express their creativity without financial barriers.”

Samuel Gabriel-Pitman

Under this partnership, Audiomack users can explore and utilize a wide variety of beats, enabling artists to craft unique sounds and enhance their musical projects without incurring additional costs. This initiative is aligned with both companies' commitment to empowering artists and promoting musical diversity.

Samuel Gabriel-Pitman, CEO of Beatlibrary, commented on the partnership: "We believe that every artist should have the tools to express their creativity without financial barriers. This partnership with Audiomack aligns perfectly with our mission to make music creation accessible to all. This initiative represents a fundamental shift in how artists create and share music. We're leveling the playing field for all artists, giving them the tools to innovate and excel."

Audiomack has consistently supported emerging and developmental artists by offering a robust suite of free creator tools, a Creator App, and a platform that reaches a global audience. The Beatlibrary integration enhances Audiomack's commitment to nurturing creativity and innovation in the music industry.

As the partnership evolves, both companies are dedicated to continuously improving the user experience and supporting the broader artist community. This collaboration will inspire new musical content, enriching the global music scene with fresh and diverse sounds.
