I've spent years professionally safeguarding young minds and promoting online safety. That's why the OurPact app is so important. It's the ultimate resource for parents to keep their kids safe online."

Clayton Cranford, Cyber Safety Cop

His school presentations give concerned parents his unique first-hand perspective on the dangers that kids face online today. And over the years, he's discovered that one of the critical steps parents can do to protect their kids online is to install the OurPact app on their children's devices.

Smartphone usage today has ignited an unparalleled global health crisis for children and teenagers. Medical studies have linked excessive screen time to a variety of physical and mental health issues in children including depression, anxiety, obesity, and behavioral problems. It's also been linked to sleeping disorders which adversely affect both physical health and academic performance. Furthermore, it impairs their development of social skills which effects their ability to form healthy relationships with friends and family.

These effects can be devastating and even life threatening for kids which is why Clayton Cranford is championing the app for fellow parents. "As a husband and father of two boys myself, I have spent years professionally safeguarding young minds and promoting online safety," says Cranford. "That's why I feel the OurPact app is so important. It's the ultimate resource for parents who want to keep their kids safe online."

OurPact is not only tamperproof, but it also has an exclusive screen capture feature that provides parents direct insight into their children's online activity.
