

Viking Pest's Branch Manager Among the Winners of the 2024 NPMA Impact Award for Women in Pest Management

Viking proudly announces Barbara Hess as a 2024 NPMA Impact Award Recipient

BASKING RIDGE, NJ, USA, May 14, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Viking Pest Control proudly announces Barbara Hess, Branch Manager, as a recipient of this year's NPMA Impact Award for Women in Pest Management, recognizing outstanding women in pest management. These awards honor women across all roles, including management, technical/service, sales, and office staff.

Barbara's dedication, expertise, & leadership stand as an example to all women in the industry. We are privileged to have her on our team, & we extend warm congratulations on this well-deserved honor.”

Paul Bergmann, President of Viking Pest Control

With her 26-year tenure at Viking Pest Control, Ms. Hess embodies the dedication and expertise these awards celebrate. Starting as a Customer Service Representative, Ms. Hess's ascent to West Branch Manager demonstrates her commitment, leadership, and extensive industry knowledge, making her a vital asset to the team.

As an NPMA Impact Award winner, Ms. Hess joins a distinguished group of women shaping the pest management landscape. This recognition underscores her achievements and our organization's commitment to fostering exceptional talent and professionalism. Thirteen women from the Anticimex family of companies were in the 2024 cohort of winners.

Paul Bergmann, President of Viking Pest Control, says "Barbara exemplifies excellence, showcasing women's profound impact in the pest management industry. Her dedication, expertise, and leadership stand as a role model and example to all women in the industry. We are privileged to have her on our team, and we extend warm congratulations to Barbara on this well-deserved honor."
