

HMP Global's Pharmacology in Wound Care course delivers world class, accessible education on demand

In-depth, accredited sessions explore the complex science of pharmacologic agents and their effects on wounds and healing.

MALVERN, PENNSYLVANIA, UNITED STATES, May 14, 2024

/EINPresswire.com/ -- As part of its efforts to bring world-class, accessible education to the global healthcare community, HMP Global's new Pharmacology in Wound Care course delivers expert-led, accredited sessions in an on-demand format.

The 43 in-depth sessions allow clinicians to earn up to 25 pharmacology credits and 39.75 CE credits.

Pharmacology in Wound Care explores the complex science of pharmacologic agents and their effects on wounds and healing, as well as the potential of adjunctive therapies to enhance medication therapy for acute and chronic wounds. The 43 in-depth sessions allow clinicians to earn up to 25 pharmacology credits and 39.75 CE credits.

We've bundled curated content designed with clinicians and their practice in mind, to help them stay up to date on clinical practices at an affordable price and a comprehensive educational program.”
