About Talking Wood Studio: We handcraft each wood bowl from a single piece of rare, visually intriguing wood from a fallen tree. Each bowl is shaped to highlight the unique aspects of the wood and hand finished using process to accentuate the beauty of the natural grain. These one-of-a-kind bowls are made in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains in northern Georgia. We make each piece an heirloom to delight generations.

The art we reveal at Talking Wood Studio is created by nature deep in the forest under the bark of a magnificent tree. When the tree's time has passed, and it falls to the forest floor, nature continues its work by changing the color and texture as the forest absorbs and recycles the tree. We spend a lot of time looking for these "diamonds in the rough" on the journey to fulfill our mission of “Adorning the world’s finest tables.”
