

AMMWECC Stands Up Against Extremism and Terrorism at Stanford University

WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, UNITED STATES, May 14, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In response to recent protests on the Stanford University campus featuring dangerous chants promoting violence and antisemitism, the American Muslim & Multifaith Women's Empowerment Council (AMMWECC) reiterates its commitment to standing up against extremism and terrorism. The Muslim American women of AMMWECC firmly believe in the values of justice, righteousness, and inclusivity. These values are at the core of our belief system and guide our actions in advocating for peace and understanding among diverse communities.

"Just as we stood up against extremism and terrorism following the events of 9/11, we continue to denounce any form of violence or hatred that threatens the safety and well-being of all individuals. We condemn the antisemitism and anti-Americanism that has permeated the American campuses," declared Soraya Deen, Ammwec Executive speaking at the protest.

AMMWECC's Youth liaison to the Hindu community, Rutvij Holay, who was one of the organizers of the recent rally against terrorism at Stanford University, exemplifies the spirit of unity and collaboration across different faith traditions.

Together, we stand united in our efforts to promote peace and understanding among all people. As Muslim American women, we recognize the freedoms and respect that America has granted us, freedoms that we may not have experienced in the countries we came from. We have to protect and uphold American values and democracy, while also honoring our responsibilities as
