ABOUT CASA/LA

CASA of Los Angeles (www.casala.org) is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that organizes community volunteers to take action and advocate for children and families impacted by LA County's overburdened child welfare and juvenile justice systems. The children and youth served by CASA/LA come from historically underserved populations that have experienced the extraordinary consequences of racial disparities and structural inequality that lead to poverty, neglect and abuse. Through a restorative and culturally-sensitive lens, CASA volunteers, or Court Appointed Special Advocates, work with a child in foster care to form a trusting relationship, ensuring the children and their families have equitable access to support and resources in the areas of education, healthcare and housing. CASA volunteers help children in important ways such as comforting them through emotional trauma and transition, arranging for needed healthcare, social services or enrichment activities, talking with teachers to ensure educational services are in place and reporting to the children's court and judges by attending court hearings and advocating for the child's welfare. CASA/LA is among the largest of regional programs in a national and state-wide volunteer network serving children in foster care. Studies have shown that children with CASA volunteers receive more assistance and support than children without and are more likely to be returned to their families, or adopted and less likely to reenter the child welfare system.
