with Dr. Maroun E. Hayek, aimed to provide effective and early intervention to prevent severe outcomes.

The treatment protocol included two phases. The first phase involved antiviral medications, such as bamlanivimab or casirivimab/imdevimab, coupled with ivermectin. The second phase targeted COVID-19 pneumonia with tofacitinib and apixaban, as diagnosed by CT scan. This comprehensive approach was designed to address the infection at multiple stages and mitigate the progression to severe disease.

From November 17, 2020, to February 28, 2021, Dr. Robert Corkern treated 551 high-risk patients under this regimen.
