

Catalis Launches Integration with PayPal for 529 College Savings Plans on National 529 Day

This integration with PayPal is for the next innovation for College Savings Accounts - digital wallet payments to fund 529 college savings accounts.

ALPHARETTA, GA, UNITED STATES, May 29, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- On "National 529 Day," Catalis announced an integration with PayPal for the next innovation for College Savings Accounts - digital wallet payments to fund 529 college savings accounts. The ease and speed of payment products like PayPal and Venmo will enable more parents, friends, and families to save for college. National 529 Day, recognized annually on May 29, is dedicated to showcasing the nation's 529 plans and the value of investing in college savings accounts.

Scott Roza, CEO at Catalis

“We are excited to continue to work alongside PayPal by jointly leveraging our technology and scale to streamline the customer enrollment and payment experience for college savers,” said Scott Roza, CEO at Catalis. “Yesterday’s students are becoming today’s account owners. PayPal and Venmo will offer the next generation of users the easy, flexible, and secure payment options they expect.”

Catalis, a leading provider of software-enabled services for 529 college savings plans, will launch the first fully integrated digital wallet payment option for CollegeWell, sponsors of Private College 529, a nationwide, prepaid plan that allows families to lock in tuition rates at nearly 300 private colleges and universities. Catalis and PayPal plan to roll out the service to additional state plans throughout 2024.

On average, about 16 million families are saving for college through 529 plans, which provide unique tax advantages. 529 plans make it easier to budget and save for the cost of higher education at colleges and universities, technical and community colleges, trade schools, and many other post-secondary education programs.
