Kids Fun at Fabby-Do

Summer is a time for exploration and growth. Our classes offer a world where kids can dive into the world of creativity, building not just art, but also the skills that will serve them for life.”

The significance of summer activities for children’s development is well-documented. A Harvard study on the social, emotional, and academic benefits of free play reveals that summertime engagement is essential for children to learn to navigate their physical and social environments, solve problems, and develop critical social skills<sup>1</sup>. Fabby-Do’s summer classes are crafted to align with these insights, providing a structured yet playful environment where children can enhance their creativity and social abilities.

“Summer is a time for exploration and growth,” says Robin Brackbill, owner of Fabby-Do. “Our classes offer a world where kids can dive into the world of creativity, building not just art, but also the social skills that will serve them for life.”

Each experience group - "Mommy and Me" (ages 2-4), "Imagination Bunch" (ages 5-7), and "Creators Club" (ages 8-10) - is given the attention and resources needed to thrive, fostering an environment where creativity leads to confidence, and crafts turn into connections. Sessions are held on Wednesday or Friday mornings, a perfect fit for busy summer schedules. Kids receive a take home a craft project for any session missed.

Enrollment information is available at www.fabbydo.com or on Fabby-Do social media.
